

First Sisley Spa in North America Opens at The Carlyle
Opening Marks 6th Spa Launch by Trilogy Spa Holdings

New York, NY – April 19, 2016 – Trilogy Spa Holdings announces the opening of the first full service Sisley-Paris Spa in North America at The Carlyle, A Rosewood Hotel. Previously Sense, A Rosewood Spa at The Carlyle, this re-launch will now feature the renowned French skincare techniques of Sisley-Paris. The international luxury beauty brand is the benchmark in phyto-cosmetology, sourcing the best natural plant extracts to obtain the most effective skincare results.

Trilogy Spa Holdings (Trilogy) is a fast-growing boutique operator of luxury spas in the most iconic hotels and resorts. Known for transforming spas into highly profitable businesses within the world's finest hotels, Trilogy already drives paramount success at properties such as the Guerlain Spa in the Towers of the Waldorf Astoria New York and Well & Being at the Fairmont Scottsdale Princess.

This full integration of the prestigious Sisley brand introduces a new program of phyto-cosmetology treatments including a series of phyto-aromatic facials. Utilizing the power of aromatherapy, these treatments combine Sisley's most innovative essential oil and plant extract-based products with ancient facial massage rituals, applied in a precise method to meet individual skincare needs.

"We look forward to sharing Sisley's highly-effective and luxurious skincare treatments with a cosmopolitan clientele," says Angela Portella, vice president of operations for Trilogy Spa Holdings. "Fitting the varied needs of guests from around the world, The Sisley Spa combines the elements of ultimate relaxation with unparalleled post-treatment results."

As the newest addition to the global Sisley Spa portfolio, The Sisley Spa at The Carlyle is a retreat dedicated to sensory well-being, and will provide guests with the ultimate urban escape to relax and rejuvenate. The Sisley Spa's comprehensive menu features signature Sisley results-driven facials and body treatments. Additionally, the spa's personalized, multi-sensorial massages enhance traditional Swedish and Deep Tissue treatments, offering guests a more immersive and restorative experience.

"We wanted our first North American Sisley Spa to launch in a timeless hotel known for classic and sophisticated elegance, mirroring the Sisley brand essence," says James Maki, president of Sisley North America. "The intimate setting is truly a haven where guests can completely unwind while enjoying the most luxurious and highly effective skincare and body treatments from our expert team of Sisley-trained estheticians."

A calming oasis in the heart of bustling New York City, the 4,000-square-foot Sisley Spa features a tranquil environment of low lights and warm décor, inspired by the hotel's historic glamour. Designed to evoke a more residential sense, guests are welcomed into the relaxation room featuring plush velvet sofas and ottomans, before being led to a private treatment room with Carrara marble counters and English chandeliers. Post-treatment, guests can take a seat at the legendary Yves Durif Salon at The Carlyle, where master stylist Yves Durif and his expert staff cut and style hair to enhance features in an effortless way. The salon and spa's shared space make pre-event pampering seamless, as clients move effortlessly from a facial or body treatment to a cut and color with Yves.

Before heading out on the town, guests can shop in the Yves Durif Salon boutique, featuring Sisley makeup, perfume, artisan jewelry, accessories from local designers and exclusive items previously only found in Europe from the likes of Chanel and Hermes. The Sisley Spa at The Carlyle, A Rosewood Hotel is conveniently situated near popular destinations such as Central Park, Fifth Avenue and The Metropolitan Museum of Art.
