Dry Skin

MASK Sisley Black Rose

The perennially parched have spoken: Celebrities slather it on mid-flight, and makeup artists swear it makes you look like you've had your daily water allotment in just 15 minutes. The black rose extract imparts the dewiness, while vitamins nourish.

CLEANSING BALM Goop

Gwyneth Paltrow clearly has your back. Why else would she come up with a concoction that makes cleansing a sensory experience? No rubbing, no tugging, just a decadent mix of almond, olive, and coconut oils plus shea and cocoa butters to erase the day.

$90; goop.com.

SERUM SkinMedica HA⁵

Fact: Over time, our skin loses its ability to hydrate itself. This serum counteracts that with a blend of five types of hyaluronic acid. Wear it nightly and you'll get immediate hydration and a recharge on your body's own moisture-producing abilities.

NIGHT CREAM SkinCeuticals Triple Lipid Restore

You might not know how to define a lipid, but your skin knows when it's running low on the natural fats that help strengthen it. They're found here along with rejuvenating ceramides, cholesterol, and fatty acids.

SCRUB Fresh Sugar Face Polish

This scrub is made for your skin's delicate balancing act. It simultaneously exfoliates and hydrates, thanks to a generous dose of brown sugar and macadamia oils. It's as hard-working as it is delicious-smelling.

CLEANSER CeraVe Hydrating

This cleanser is a true work-horse: It cleans and fortifies the skin's surface with a gentle touch. Experts also like the fact that it doesn't leave behind any residue.

$13; walgreens.com.

ACNE TREATMENT La Roche-Posay Effaclar Duo

This treatment boasts over 5 percent micronized benzoyl peroxide (in a molecule size so it penetrates more deeply), which fights acne-causing bacteria. Lipohydroxy acid exfoliates and keeps the skin feeling fresh.
